“ My fondest memory of Archie was when he took me deer hunting, along with my father -- Carl Brisendine. Archie at the wheel, myself in the middle and my dad on the passenger side, we were driving around looking for the herd. Suddenly, the herd popped up over the ridge and ran right across the road in front of us. Archie at the wheel looked and me and said, "If we hit one, we get it for FREE!!" And with that being said, hit the gas! Instead of hitting a deer, he divided the herd. He jumped out and took one on his side, and my dad jumped out and took one on his side. Then, they both looked at me still sitting in the pickup and asked, "Are you going to get out and take one?" I told them both they were doing a fine job without me!
