“ Every summer my parents would send me to spend time with their families. Michelle and Michael would pester and befriend me..... Swimming at the pool and walking back to Grandma's house, jumping on trampoline, walking to the corner stores for drinks and working at our aunt's cafe to serve the coolest older persons lunch and coffee.... staying up and watching HBO, painting crafts with grandma's patients, sneaking drinks while walking around town and gossiping with the local kids. All my childhood memories of summer fun are surrounded by my vivacious, daring cousin Michelle.. She was my hero. So pretty and liked and able to get out of her shell. Michelle taught me to not care about all those people who hated me. She even stood up for me while knowing her friends were right about my awkward behavior and looks. Michelle could say the jokes I couldn't dare to, she spent nights talking and playing with me when others didn't. We grew apart as we grew up but most of my best childhood memories are of my summers with her and my aunt Lora. Thank you, Michelle, for making a very painful childhood better. Thank you for teaching me to be outgoing and not care about all those who put me down. I miss your beautiful, wide smile and just a little too loud laugh. I love you. Karla
