“ It was early Spring of 1962, coming back from a Cherokee track meet. Andrew needed to get back before the bus, so 4 of us were chosen to pile into the '59 Impala fast-back, under the glass. Roger's new wife hit the ignition and we were in heaven while the rest of the team faced the wait for the bus. Later, I commented to Andrew that Roger must have it made: beautiful young wife, hot car! Wow. Andrew barely commented: Roger was living it, but I was too naive to understand. My respect for both Roger and Andrew skyrocketed, and those glass-paks are still ringing in my ears.

“ I will always remember his chuckle. When we would visit he always ask about Mike and the kids. We would talk about the Grandkids. He told me he saw me out in the yard with Mike , but didn't know me. I had colored my hair blonde. He thought Mike had found someone else, since all he saw was a blonde going in and out of the house. He said it took him a couple of weeks to figure out it was me. We laughed and laughed. He will be missed. Hugs to all of you.
